

Contemporary collection

Charnwood stoves fuse traditional heating methods with modern good looks

Nothing says quintessential English country-home grandeur quite like a roaring log fire. But thanks to family-run Charnwood's contemporary stoves it now translates equally as well into modern, urban interiors. Founded in 1972, Charnwood was one of the first British manufacturers to develop a range of clean-burn stoves. Today, it uses sophisticated technology to ensure burning wood is safe, affordable and ecologically sound.

Charnwood's latest range is the 'Cove', which melds streamlined lines with the charm of an authentic log-fire. The classic looks of the 'island' range are combined with a revolutionary air-control system that sets the benchmark for fuel-efficiency. All Charnwood stoves are complemented by the 'Bodj' range of fireside accessories, iron fire- tools and terracotta hearth tiles, hand-made in Cambodia by Fair Trade initiatives.

To find the perfect Charnwood stove for your home, try the online Stove Selector which allows you to create your virtual living room. Then pick your colour, each stove is available in perennial favourite black plus seven other chic shades.

For more information call 01983 537780, or visit www.charnwood.com

From left Cove one with centre stand in brown, £1115. Cove two with store stand in green, £1535. Island one in pewter, £1320. Cove three in almond, £1980. Island three in blue, £1820. Bodj bamboo bulb basket, £35. All from Charnwood